

THEATRE.—Evelyn was not given last night with that excellence with which it has been performed. Some of the performers were a little lame in their parts, and Miss Jones, herself, at times, seemed to lack that enthusiasm and self-forgetfulness which generally characterizes her personations. Still, there were scenes full of appropriate pathos—full of excellence and life. In the prayer, her acting was very superior—pervaded with a pathos that touched every heart in the audience.

This evening Miss Jones will appear as Sybil, in the play of that name, written for her by John Savage, Esq., and founded upon incidents connected with the celebrated actress, Rachel, who died in 1797. She will appear in a new comedy, and will also appear in a new comedy, and will also appear in a new comedy.

GERMAN THEATRE.—Mozart Hall was not as well attended last evening as it should have been, the company, so far as we have seen, performed, is really a good one, and we are astonished that our German citizens do not give their proper encouragement.

Exchange Office on Market Street.

We call the attention of our readers, and especially that of body of "solid men," the butchers, to the card of Messrs. Davis & Meyer in our columns to-day. They open this morning on the north side of Market street, between Third and Fourth streets, and will keep all the goods of the house of exchange office. Messrs. Davis & Meyer are well known in Louisville. They combine experience and excellent business capacity, and their office, situated upon Market street, will be a real convenience to the neighborhood.

We would invite attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Local Board of Directors of the New York Life Insurance Company, in our columns to-day. Their first session was held yesterday. After passing upon the reliability and solvency of the company, they "recommended it to the encouragement and support of the community." Mr. Trotter, the general agent of the company, is here, with his usual happy effect, starting the agency into active operation. See advertisement in another column, and go immediately and get your life insured.

CLOTHING.—We ask the attention of our readers to the conspicuous advertisement of Mr. Mark Strauss, dealer in clothing and furnishing goods. He keeps constantly on hand a large and fine assortment of cloths, cassimeres, and vestings, which he is prepared to make up to order in the most fashionable style. Those who wish to buy clothing at low prices, or have their clothes made to order, will do well to give this old established house a call. They deal as fair as the fairest.

SEED AND AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.—The advertisement of our friends, Messrs. Peter & Buchanan, will be found in our columns. The trade of this extensive establishment embraces every implement, large and small, made for the use of the farmer, from the largest threshing or reaping machine to the smallest spade or hoe used in the kitchen garden. Garden and grass seeds, too, of every variety, and of the best quality, can also be bought of them either at wholesale or retail. The proprietors are too favorably known throughout all the Western and Southern States to need any commendation from us; but to those who may not have had transactions with this house, we would say that their reputation for fair dealing and promptness in filling orders is well deserved. They occupy the large four-story building, No. 484 Main street, which is filled from cellar to garret with every article that a farmer could desire in prosecuting his vocation.

The fame of the Messrs. Websters as Photographers and Daguerrotypists, is not confined to Louisville, nor Kentucky. They are known throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Mr. F. Heiburger, of the firm of London & Co., was shot by a Mr. Strong, in Washington City. It appears that while Mr. Heiburger and several gentlemen were standing on the steps of the Masonic Hall, a gay man was seen to pass up and down in front of the door. He suddenly turned—drew a revolver and shot into the crowd, hitting Mr. H. in the foot, which had to be amputated. It is thought Mr. Strong is insane, as there had been no quarrel between the parties; and Mr. Strong believed he has authority to kill every Free Mason.

CANES.—The finest assortment of fancy and plain walking canes has just been received at Chalmers' Millinery, under the National Hotel. They excel anything we have seen in the city. Charles keeps everything fine in his line. Call and see his canes and fancy articles, and do not fail to try his cigars. They are fine—the best to be had in the city.

Mr. C. C. Spencer, sells this morning, in the room over Mr. W. W. Talbot's fancy store, on Fourth street, between Market and Jefferson, a fine assortment of imported embroidered lace, and muslin window curtains, to which we call the attention of our lady readers, city and country dealers and housekeepers. The sale is on time.

OAKLAND RACES.—If the weather is fine the races will take place this afternoon, which were set for yesterday, but which did not come off.

More Rain.—About half past eleven o'clock, last night, another shower came up, but it was not heavy.

The Lafayette Engine house has been altered, and one of the steam engines has been located in it.

The west end of the Court House is nearly finished and presents a beautiful specimen of stone masonry.

A man in Washington has gone crazy on the subject of Free Masonry.

The total amount of fine yesterday imposed in the City Court, reached the sum of $450. Another good day's work.

There were no arrests yesterday, up to six o'clock, and few after that hour.

The case of William Gilmore, charged with killing George Conter, was continued until Tuesday next.

This being fair week at Indianapolis, there are two theaters, one concert room, and a panorama, all in full blast. That will do pretty well for a town of ten thousand inhabitants.

There are two cases of assault with intent to kill awaiting examination. Willis Mitchell and son for assaulting Henry Karman, and Charles Butcher, for assaulting Louis Victoria.

Mayor Riley will report to the Council, on Thursday night, the result of the election for Mayor, held in this city on Monday.

The sun came out beautifully yesterday afternoon, and almost made one forget this was not summer.

The steamboat John Briggs is offered for sale. Read advertisement in another column.

Considerations.

Life Insurance increases the happiness, the dignity, the wisdom, and the power of all men. Happiness, in the fact that life and health are often prolonged by being provided against the consequences of death. Unrestrained freedom to the mind infuses vigor and spring, which lead to the largest intellectual development.

Dignity, in the consciousness that the whole man is engaged, in the proper performance of a duty, which he contemplates before God when he assumes the obligation of the husband and father.

Wisdom, in adopting all the appliances and care may demand, whether from a limited or extended resources, looking equally to the future, and securing, beyond all possible contingency, not only alimony and education for his children, but position, which always follows virtuous exertion.

And, lastly, Power, which as naturally succeeds to man's influence, when he feels the responsibility of moral obligation, and will not neglect it, as that the earth turns upon its axis, or water seeks its level.

Other property may be subject to incumbrances, and the widow and orphan find their expectations giving place to the creditor. But to the honor of the Legislature of the State of New York, and a few other States of this Union, it is said, a life policy of insurance company is raised above all doubt and cavil, and under all circumstances or conditions, its benefits instantly issue to the family of the deceased, without any legal formality but the testimony which shows the policy to be effective.

By this wise legislation a sufficient amount is guaranteed, against all the claims of a creditor, to insure to the wife the privilege of a life policy upon her husband. Does she object that it becomes available by his death? Then she should object to any testamentary device. By her labor or earnings he reared the tenement she has been left to occupy; by the same prudent investment of savings or earnings, he obtained a life policy.

Seeing what life insurance is destined, under our free institutions, to accomplish, we hold it up to the American people as a great germ of civilization, a great sine of education, a great stimulant to exertion, a great instrument of moral elevation. A man should leave his wife and child, and seek some passive Hindu or stupid Hottentot wife, in a view of all his obligations, he will find that the light, that a Roman Emperor, he may think he thus shuts out justice.

How many now, occupants of our almshouses, houses of refuge, asylums of the indigent, and other humane and charitable institutions of the age, might have been useful and influential members of society, had their fathers, their husbands, and their brothers saved this degradation by the avails of a life policy? If the annuities were made to pay, "Thou shalt die and not live?" how many of our business men, living in affluence, would not feel the immense importance of a life policy to their families? How many families, trusting to their father's solicitude and care, and perhaps thinking he needs no life policy, would find themselves without money, in all the afflictions of poverty?

In all good resolves, the purpose formed should be the plan executed. In life insurance, it is an imperative duty. Decision, resolution, energy, action, would have brought losses into the ranks of the assured, and saved the crash and ruin to an infinite number in our land, which its absence has ruined forever.

What says the Bible? "If that provident not for his own, especially for those of his own house, hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." We understand that Mr. Trotter, General Agent of the N. Y. Life Insurance Company, is remaining at the Louisville Hotel, for the purpose of building up the company's interest at this agency.

The N. Y. Life Insurance Company, located at 112 Broadway, is one of the oldest and most reliable institutions in the United States. Its losses have ever been promptly paid, and its dividends per annum have never been less than 30 per cent. It has paid over $1,000,000 to widows and orphans since its organization. The trade of this extensive establishment embraces every implement, large and small, made for the use of the farmer, from the largest threshing or reaping machine to the smallest spade or hoe used in the kitchen garden.

Mechanics' Fair.

A branch of our home manufacture, which is carried on to a very considerable extent, though, as yet, comparatively but little known to the public, is that of brush-making. Messrs. Wunsch & Bro., who have been engaged in this business for some years or more, exhibit a case of their work which will not only compare favorably with articles of eastern make, but will, in some respects, carry off the palm. In this case we find brushes of all kinds, or nearly all—for the hair, the oil, the clothes, as well as for coarse work.

Messrs. T. H. Hunt & Co., of the Louisville Mills, have on exhibition, samples of their manufacture in bagging and rope; their bagging has always commanded ready sale in the South, and will continue to do so as long as they manufacture such an article as they have on exhibition.

Mr. William Richardson, of the Kentucky Wood Works, shows samples of his manufacture, which will attract general attention from mechanics, especially wagon and carriage builders. He shows hobs, felloes, spokes, &c., for all kinds of vehicles, from the lightest buggy to the heaviest wagon. This is also a comparatively new branch of manufacture, and should be liberally encouraged.

Mark Anthony & Co., of New Albany, show samples of their work in wooden ware—peck and half bushel measures, and other articles of the same character; these give evidence of being carefully and strongly made; they have the appearance of durability, and are neat.

Messrs. Campbell & Onderdonk, of this city, have specimens of frames and "frame-work" panels, &c., which, for excellence of finish and neatness of design, will carry off the prize; in oval picture frames they seem to have achieved a great success, their work being not only strong but exceedingly neat.

H. Buchter & Co., manufacturers of chairs, show some very good samples of their work; hall and parlor chairs, office chairs, cushion and cane seat rockers, &c. Our people should, by all means, encourage home manufacture, if they wish the city to prosper.

The big bell, from the foundry of William Key, speaks for itself, and proves, if need be, that in this line of business our city carries off the palm from all the cities of the West. His bells are well-known on the river from Pittsburgh to the remotest town in Texas, and the furthest point of navigation on the Cumberland, Tennessee, Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri, Yellowstone, &c. Many of the churches and engine-houses throughout the West, and plantations in the South, are supplied from his establishment. His bells have a clear, strong, full tone, which is not to be found in the bells of other makers, and deserve all that can be said of them.

Alexander Ellis & Co. have on exhibition specimens of their work, in the shape of doors and windows. The window is complete, frame and all, ready to set into the wall; the sash are hung with weights, the inside shutters fold back, and fit to their niche very neatly. This work is of great commendation for its general excellence.

The samples of white lead, lined oil, pure and bleached oil-cake, &c., from the oil mill of Waters & Fox, will not fail to attract attention from mechanics and the thinking portion of the community generally. This establishment has long enjoyed a very enviable reputation, and has found ready sale for all its products; indeed, we learn that the proprietors have a very heavy European market for some of their articles.

The children's cabs, exhibited by J. R. & C. A. Baker, manufacturers, and by John Gill, are well and neatly made, and deserve special notice.

Messrs. Schooley & Co., of Cincinnati, have some of their ice-chests on exhibition; these chests are finished off in very fine style, and will prove ornaments to the dining-room.

Messrs. Resor & Co., of Cincinnati, one of the oldest store establishments in the West, show a sample of hall and parlor settee which is of an excellent pattern, and like all their other goods, is of the best quality.

Mr. F. Stone, of this city, exhibits a large and beautiful family carriage. The style of building, the design, the work, the finishing, are all of the first order, and there is in the vehicle an elegance, a lightness in running, and a compactness that will render it a valuable acquisition.

Messrs. Ainslie & Cochrane have several car-wheels as samples of their work, which, to all appearance, are well made, and prove, if it were necessary, that we do not need to go abroad for such articles when they can be made at home.

Dr. Pierson & Tuttle, dentists, show a case containing several sets of teeth of their own manufacture, which, for solidity of appearance and elegance of finish, deserve great praise, and prove that such work can be done as well at home as abroad.

This is the season for fall planting—the season for transplanting trees from the Nursery to the permanent orchard grounds. It is too soon in this locality owing to the warm, dry weather of the past few weeks. Ordinarily, this is the season for fall planting.

EVERETT, OR THE HEART'S LONGING.—By ALBERT.—This is a book of books—four books, according to the author's division, in a single volume. We have but glanced at its contents, and sketched its pages here and there. It is a book of books, and is a book of books, and is a book of books.

RAILROAD SOLD.—Hon. John L. Robinson, of Marshall, Indiana, upon the double track of the Federal Court, sold the franchise, rolling stock, depots, and all the personal and real property of the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad, yesterday, for $1,000,000. The property was sold to the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad, for $1,000,000.

THE MARINER FROM CINCINNATI brought 37 pigs furniture; 64 pigs luggage; 37 pigs tobacco; 25 cartons of oil of vitrol; 72 lbs whisky; 700 lbs paper; 35 doz washstands, and 36 bbls onions.

The river has not varied a 1/2 inch in the last 48 hours. There are about 20 inches steamboat water in the canal. Business continues dull at the wharf—not a boat at the city wharf. Yesterday forenoon was cloudy, but the afternoon was clear and pleasant.
